Senior Partner
McKinsey & Company
Dallas, TX

As leader of McKinsey's Travel, Transport, & Logistics (TTL) sector, Travis Fagan helps to deliver unparalleled impact to its TTL clients. He primarily serves B2B clients such as railroads, logistics providers, environmental services companies, and advanced industrial manufacturers. He also has extensive experience in B2C sectors, including retail, hotels, and casinos.

Travis' deepest expertise lies in productivity-oriented topics, and he has helped clients make major improvements in areas such as network planning, front-line operations, and supply chain efficiency. He has led more than 20 large-scale transformation efforts, ranging from merger integration to large-scale growth and productivity programs.

Before joining McKinsey, Mr. Fagan held management positions at buy.com, Wells Fargo, US West, and Arthur Andersen business consulting, where he served clients in the telecommunications and media industries. He holds an MPA from the McCombs School of Business, where he was a Somerfeld scholar and received the Dean's Award for academic excellence. He also received a BBA in accounting from The University of Texas, graduating with honors

Travis co-chairs McKinsey's Senior Partner Election Committee, and serves on the Dean's Council for the McCombs School of Business at the University of Texas.
