

Brian Chou
Cloud Commissions Accounting Lead
Google
Austin, TX

Brian is currently the Cloud Commissions Accounting Lead at Google. Prior to this position, Brian has over 6 years of experience at Deloitte, centered on the regulatory sector of the financial services industry. The projects involved in these experiences were two separate settlements mandated by the Treasury department and Office of Comptroller and Currency (OCC), involving 2 of the major international banks. Both engagements focused on aiding the clients in correctly complying with the terms laid out by both regulatory agencies (e.g. reviewing the mortgage/foreclosure practices of the bank or reviewing the riskiness of the high risk customers). Roles on these engagements have ranged from technical analyst (conducting initial reviews of loans and creating workpapers), quality check (reviewing the work of an analyst), and team management (managing a team of analysts and quality reviewers). In addition, Brian has had experience in technical accounting within the consumer products industry. Limited to one engagement, the focus was to aid the client in updating their financial accounting policies, identify control gaps, and identify potential new accounts/transactions that would be needed. Specific deliverables were technical memos, control charts, process flow diagrams, journal entry suggestions, and a complete overhaul of their accounting policies in place. Roles included the direct drafting and editing of technical memos, review of process flows created by staff, and thorough research of accounting topics. Brian's undergraduate and masters degrees in accounting, as well as certification as a public accountant were instrumental credentials in achieving success for this role and engagement.
