The KBH Energy Center seeks to be the pre-eminent energy center at the intersection of energy, business, law, and policy. The Center will pursue this mission by leveraging the resources of the McCombs Business and Law Schools, their alumni, and supporters to expand our knowledge and understanding of this crucial industry; to engage, inform, and connect leaders in that industry, in government, and at UT on core energy issues; to educate and inspire students to be the next generation of leaders; to grow the network and reach of the University of Texas throughout the world of energy.

"Texas is of course the energy industry leader in America and we are doing so much in innovation in this state. We do have an international impact and by educating future energy leaders of America, we will continue to influence the world. The focus of the center is education for our students and convening experts and leaders in the energy sector to explore the most pressing issues facing the energy industry today. This collaboration between the Law School and the Business School has proven to be a success and I look forward to continuing to grow the center with our Executive and Advisory Councils."

Senator Kay Bailey Hutchison, Founding Member

"The University of Texas is and should continue to be the best place for a robust discourse around energy issues in the US and globally. Today, more than ever, we must address both energy transition and energy security issues in a holistic manner. The KBH Energy Center has the business, legal and policy resources to not only dissect these complex issues but also to identify the potential solutions the world needs."
